“My work exists for the ones who felt everything, saw through everything, and spent years being corrected for it. You weren't broken. You were just never given the right context for what you carry.”

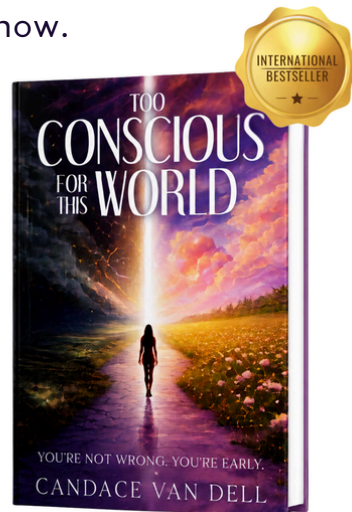

THE MISSION

Candace Van Dell helps people who have spent their lives feeling too aware, too sensitive, and too awake for the world around them finally understand why, and build lives that reflect what they know.

ABOUT CANDACE

The Voice for People Who Feel Everything

Candace Van Dell is a spiritual coach, author, and retreat facilitator with a Masters in Spiritual Psychology. Her work sits at the intersection of consciousness, identity, and healing, built for the people who have always sensed more than most and spent years being told that was a problem.

After years of her own healing work and thousands of hours coaching clients through spiritual awakening, cycle-breaking, and identity reclamation, Candace developed a body of work that does what most personal development content doesn't. It meets highly sensitive, deeply aware people exactly where they are, and shows them the way forward.

Her debut book, Too Conscious for This World: You're Not Wrong, You're Early, hit #1 on Amazon and achieved International Bestseller status in its first week, proof that the audience she has built is not just large, but hungry for exactly this work.

She is the founder of The Truth Room, a private membership community for people who are done performing wholeness and ready to actually live it, and the facilitator of the RISE Retreat, a luxury healing experience for women stepping fully into their next level.
